William Kamkwamba was born in Malawi, a land withered by drought and hunger, and a place where hope and opportunity were hard to find. With nothing but a few science textbooks, and his own curiosity and determination, Kamkwamba embarked on a daring plan to change his community and better the lives of those around him.

We invite you to join in a book discussion of The Boy Who Harnessed the Wind by William Kamkwamba. You can register to attend this program at the first floor information desk. Register in advance and receive a free copy of the book.

Co-sponsored by the Urbana-Zomba Sister Cities Committee, the UIUC Center for African Studies, and the UIUC Office of the Vice Chancellor for Public Engagement.
